Help Buckinghamshire's Bees Create a Bee Square

Join our Bee Squared native wildflower project to help our bees!

Just sow our Bee Squared wildflower seeds in your garden or container pots.

Pollinating insects, such as bees, have massively declined over the past 50 years. We rely on pollinators to help our food grow as well as other plants in our ecosystem. They are really important to our planet.

In Wendover and the surrounding villages we want to stop this decline and help our wonderful natural friends.

Did you know that we're already on a national B-Line, a natural pathway the bees and other insects take to move around and pollinate plants.

Having patches of wildflowers in lots of different spots helps them thrive!

We Need Everyone to join in!

So get all your local friends and family planting!

Instructions on how to sow the seeds are on the seed packet, as well as being on our website and Facebook Page.

There are enough seeds in this packet for a few pots or up to 1m².

Let us know where you are planting your seeds so we can map our bee activity – register on our website - ... - and you could win a "Grow Your Own Fruit & Veg" kit worth up to £150

We'd like to thank all our volunteers and project partners and funders.
